FIREMEN'S FESTIVAL DAY NEXT WEEK

Water Fight and Ball Game
Among Many Features of Day's Program

DANCE IN THE EVENING

The Antioch Volunteer Fire Department has completed plans for their big festival to be held next Thursday, August 23. The program will start at 1 o'clock sharp.

The first event will be a water fight. The contestants in the event will not be entirely settled as the committee in charge hopes to secure a team from the Grayslake Volunteer Fire Department to come up and give them battle. If this team can not be secured two teams from the Antioch Fire Department will be chosen. The teams will consist of six men each and with hose connected up to hydrants will be placed 100 feet apart and will fight it out with streams of 35 pound pressure, a stream that will ordinarily knock a man down at closer range. This event will take place on Main street and should be worth travelling miles to see.

At 1:15 a slow race with Antioch will be held, so if you have a Lizzie that you figure is the slowest mortal on earth, bring her along. If you don't think you can get here on time ask some friend to tow you in. It will be worth you while as there is a good prize attached to this event.

At 1:45 there will be an obstacle race for autos. Barrels, railroad ties and what not will be strewn along the road and the object will be to thread you way through without touching anything. If you are good on taking corners on two wheels you better try your hand at this event. Prizes are attached.

A street parade of floats will be held at 2:15. The parade will start at the Grade School grounds and proceed through Main street to the ball grounds. Everyone is urged to get into this event. Good prizes are to be given to the winners.

The balance of the afternoon's program will be held at the ball park. Here will be held races for boys and girls, and an unusual event in a clay pigeon shoot. The contestants will each have 50 targets and the four highest guns will be awarded prizes.

At 4:00 will be held a baseball game between Lake Villa and Antioch business men. Now don't let anybody tell you that it will be a tame affair. Business men from both towns have suffered agony from practicing to get into shape for this game, so look for some real competition.

Last but not least will be the big dance. Bill Rosling is clearing out his mammoth garage for this event and anyone who is acquainted with one of these Antioch Fire Department dances will tell you that they are the real thing and with McCormick's orchestra thrown in you can rest assured the fire boys have done their duty and if you don't have a good time it's your own fault.

So folks, get up early next Thursday morning and get the work done, then lie yourself Antiochward in the Lizzie, hayrack or anything. Be sure and get here early. Bring your lunch if necessary, but get here. You won't regret it.

The entire proceeds for the festival will go toward paying for the fire truck recently acquired by the department. The Antioch boys have worked hard to get this truck and all they need is a little support. Their interests are yours. They have not yet failed to respond to an appeal for help. You may need them some day, and if you can't show your appreciation of the good work these boys are doing financially do it morally and be on hand Thursday at 12:30.

ELECT OFFICERS

At the regular meeting of the Royal Neighbors Tuesday evening three officers were elected to fill vacancies left by Mrs. Arthur Bock's resignation on account of her health. Mrs. Frieda Wertz was elected to the office of orator, Mrs. Lena Viozane, vice orator and Mrs. Nellie Ziegler, organist. After the election of officers and the business of the lodge disposed of a "penny social" was enjoyed. About forty-six attended the meeting. Installation of officers will be held at the next regular meeting.

Antioch in Easy Win Over Justus

Jess Davidson's left arm proved too strong for the Justus Sportsmen who traveled from Chicago last Sunday to play Antioch at the Antioch local ball field. The Chicago players were well represented and there was much rooting in their favor for the first few innings while their team was traveling at a fast clip. But Antioch managed to get a run across the plate in the third inning on a wild pitch and in the fourth inning they batted five runs across on solid hits. After the fourth they scored almost at will and at the end of the game they had amassed 13 runs while Davidson was toying with the visiting batsmen.

The first batter for the Justus team sent a dandy hit through second base, but he was the victim of a double play on the next batsman. That hit was the only one the Chicago boys could get off Davidson.

The fielding of the Antioch team was the best witnessed this season. The Justus boys played a fairly good game on defense, but the pitching was inferior and Antioch took advantage of it.

Only one visitor reached third base, that resulting by two successive bases on balls issued by Davy in the eighth inning after one out. The next batter hit to Davidson and he threw to first, while the runners moved up a base. They were left stranded when the next batter watched a third strike go over the plate. That inning was the only time that the Justus team came near getting a tally.

The Lake Villa-Evanston Tigers game was cancelled on Saturday night before the game and left the Villa boys idle during the Sunday. Many of the players watched Antioch trim the Sportsmen. On next Sunday Lake Villa travel to Glenn View.

Antioch will be without baseball on Sunday, when the local team travels to Burlington to play a return game. Several weeks ago Antioch defeated them decisively at the Antioch park.

CLARA DALE WILLETT IS WED AT WAUKEGAN

Wednesday morning, Clara Dale Willett of Antioch was united in marriage to Edward H. Briggs of Englewood, Ill. The ceremony took place at the Methodist parsonage at Waukegan.

Shortly after the wedding breakfast the couple left on an extended honeymoon tour to Milwaukee, first visiting the Dells. They will tour northern Wisconsin and Michigan.

They were accompanied by Miss Jennie Willett, Harry Willett and Mrs. Margaret Davis.

The young couple will make their home in Englewood on their return, where the groom has prepared a beautiful home for his bride. The many friends of the newly weds extend their congratulations.

At the eighth hour all were escorted to the chapter room where degrees were conferred on two candidates, Millburn, Grayslake and other visitors were present, filling the hall to capacity.

The Antioch Chapter, O. E. S. No. 428 are invited to meet with Sorosis Chapter at Grayslake on Tuesday evening, Aug. 21.

WESLEY WERTZ TO ENTER ILLINOIS

This is a regular course of the college and requires other study for completion. Mr. Wertz should find this an attractive study.

Livestock to Be Feature of Annual Fair

Plans are being worked out for one of the greatest exhibitions of livestock and products of the farm, to be displayed at the Lake County Fair this year, that has ever been brought together in this section of the country. In former years this particular matter of interest to the farmer has been well taken care of, but this year promises to be a record breaker.

For the past several years Lake county farmers have been devoting more time and money to the raising of pure bred hogs and cattle, and at the fair, to be held Sept. 1 to 14th, the best of the fine herds will be brought together for comparison.

The prize herd of Holsteins belonging to Frank T. Fowler of Lake Villa will be represented. This herd has been leading for several months in the State Testing Association. Mr. Fowler's herd is under federal supervision, and dairymen in a position to know proclaim it one of the finest lot of cattle to be found in the country.

The Hawthorn Farm herd of champion Brown Swiss cattle, owned by Samuel Insull, will be represented by the best of this well known breed. W. A. Brewerton will have his pure bred Jerseys, and the many other fine herds of this and surrounding counties will be here.

In the hog pens will be found the aristocrats of the swine industry. The Arndy Farm, noted for its fine Berkshire, has made arrangements for a large number of entries.

John Wirtz of Fremont township, will have his prize-winning Chester Whites, the same herd being displayed at the big Aurora fair this week. Mr. Wirtz promises the best display of Chester Whites ever shown here.

The famous Duroc Jersey herd of Chesney Farms, Lake Villa, owned by Otto Lehmann, and in charge of Wm. Marks, will be represented by the best of this popular breed of hogs. Taken all in all, the lover of pure bred stock will have a veritable feast of good things to be seen at the fair.

All entries of whatever nature must positively be made by the evening of August 31. This will enable the big fair to open on Saturday with every thing in place and disposed of, thus avoiding the confusion attendant upon entries being made while the fair is in progress.

The Tri-State Shows of Detroit, Mich., will have charge of all amusement features this year. This concern is one of the largest of its kind in the country, and has something out of the ordinary for county fairs. The usual merry-go-rounds, ferris wheel, different slides and roller coasters, etc., will be provided. Everything will be clean and all the objectionable features will be dispensed with.

The fifty-piece band of Zion will furnish music. This famous musical organization is one of the best ever assembled, and the concerts are eagerly listened to from the powerful radio broadcasting station at Zion. Overseer Voliva has agreed to furnish the band to the fair without charge.

A new departure this year will be the fact that the fair will be held on Sunday. This has been named as Elks' Day, and the "Hello Bills" will be here in force. Waukegan Lodge will send their splendid band, with their snappy purple and white uniforms, and the day will be given over to them. Highland Park and the Chicago lodge will furnish big delegations.

There will be two hot games of baseball each afternoon, and the best of the Lake County teams will compete for the honors and purses.

The racing card for this year, under the supervision of L. C. Tewes, of Waukegan, is to be one of the best ever seen at the fair. About $2500 in purses will be given, and some of the best talent have made entries.

An innovation this year will be a four-passenger aeroplane, in which passengers will be given an opportunity to view Lake county from the air at a nominal price per trip.

The big premium list is now being circulated, and copies of this book may be secured at the Lake County Fair Bureau office, or by addressing the secretary at Libertyville.

Watch this paper for further announcements of the fair.

MOTOR BOAT RACES HELD AT FOX LAKE

Last Sunday a series of motor boat races were held on Fox Lake under the auspices of the newly organized Fox River Valley Power Boat Club. As this was the first of a series of races this year, a great many boats were not in shape to participate, only two events being run, which were as follows:

Third Class—Won by Marvis; Maxine Rose, 2nd; Grace, 3rd.

Free for All—Won by Spark Plug; Rosandel, 2nd; Janice H., 3rd.

Next Sunday, Aug. 19, there will be a series of high power motor boats and hydroplanes on Fox Lake. Start and finish will be at the Yacht Club Bohemia, which club will donate the prizes for all the events, and also the Oriental Band of Medinah Temple, (together with officers will be the guest of honor at the yacht club.

On Sunday, Aug. 26th, there will be a series of races held on the Fox River at McHenry, and on Labor Day, Sept. 3rd, there will be a series of races of speed boats and hydroplanes on Fox Lake.

The Fox Lake district has grown rapidly in the motor boat racing game, now having a large number of very fast boats, and these races afford a very exciting time for those interested in this sport.

Discuss Lights at Meeting on Monday

The village board held a special meeting Monday evening at which the presence of the merchants were requested to discuss the village finances and the lighting project.

The lighting question has seemed to have gained considerable favor among the merchants in general and it is a very much discussed movement.

The basis of the discussion that took place was on the financing and upkeep of the project, the board being very emphatic on its inability to promote it with town funds and the addition of any further expense on the village.

Several methods of financing were submitted but the one that seemed to bear the most discussion was a business tax or license. Mr. J. J. Morley was of the opinion that a tax of this nature has been declared unconstitutional, but instances of where a tax or license has been imposed for business improvement were cited.

It was noted that with the few merchants that were present there were no objections made to the suggested tax, in fact many voiced their approval.

As the exact figures on the cost of installation and maintenance were not available it was decided that these figures be secured and another meeting be held in the near future.

This question will probably be decided before Labor day as then it is expected many of the sidewalks of the business section will be rebuilt to meet requirements of the ordinance.

FARMERS PICNIC TO BE HELD AT DIAMOND LAKE AUG. 22

The Farmers Picnic this year is to be held at Diamond Lake, Illinois, Wednesday, Aug. 22. A big program is practically completed for the day, and will start early. A parade will be formed at Libertyville and will leave for the picnic grounds promptly at 10 o'clock. At the arrival of the parade the events will start with a horseshoe pitching contest, followed by a boxing match, indoor baseball and regular baseball games, both in the morning and afternoon.

At 12:00 the big lunch will be held. Speaking by A. C. Everingham and W. P. D. Rummel will take place at 1:00 p. m. At 2:30 various contests will take place including a fat man's race, hog calling contest, boys and girls races to a milk drinking contest.

The Barrington band will entertain all day. Fireworks and dancing in the evening. Congressman Rathbone will speak in the early evening. Every farmer in the county is urged to attend.

Sylvan Beach Pavilion will be the scene of a novelty dance Saturday night. Novelty will be given away. You can have your choice of rattles, whistles or anything you wish to play with. Mr. Rothe invites you out to forget your age and be a kid again.

Section of Road Opens on Friday

The road south of town to Hickory road is expected to be open for traffic Friday of this week.

It has been a long time since this route has been traveled and many thousands of dollars have slipped past the village on account of this road being closed.

Many have blamed Contractor Wade for the non-completion of the road, but closer observation of the conditions under which this contractor has been forced to work for many complications to light.

It is without doubt that Wade could have finished the road last fall, if he had but secured the cement, but for some reason it was not forthcoming, although the contractor on the Lake Villa road did not seem to be handicapped to any extent in this manner.

Then again it is stated that Mr. Wade, when unable to secure gravel at Wilmet went to Waukegan and there loaded 22 cars of gravel only to have an Illinois state inspector reject it. At any rate, the fact that Wade has completed a job up at Wisconsin and has started another at Long Lake while the road to the south remains uncompleted shows that there is something radically wrong.

Then again along comes the county outfit and starts tearing up and covering over our good gravel roads with perfectly good black dirt (absolutely guaranteed to make thick rich mud in a good rain storm). This was accomplished on both Hickory road and the Fox Lake road.

All told when it comes to being handed a lot of mud and barricades, Antioch seems to be bearing the load for the entire county.

MEMORIAL SERVICES HELD AT LAKE VILLA

Memorial services in honor of our late President, W. G. Harding, were held in the park last Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and a large number of people were gathered to pay tribute to his memory.

The children formed in line and marched to the park, led by Allendale School, which also led in the singing of "Nearer My God to Thee," "Lead, Kindly Light" and "Abide With Me." Rev. Keen led in prayer and responsive reading of the 23rd Psalm, and Village President, F. M. Hamlin introduced the speaker of the day, Rev. A. LeRoy Hall of the First Christian Church of Waukegan, who gave a splendid address. Rev. Rice of Millburn gave the closing prayer, Allendale boys sounded taps and the service closed with "The Star Spangled Banner."

The platform was very pretty with its profusion of cut flowers, with green and purple wreaths and the black bunting. Much credit is due to the committee for the splendid service.

HOUSEWIFE IS NEVER TOO OLD TO LEARN NEW IDEAS

Women visitors to the Central States Exposition, Aurora, August 17 to 25, will find it a veritable storehouse of information, according to Secretary Clifford R. Trimble.

The newest principles of home making will prove of most interest. Problems of cooking, sewing, baking, canning and home planning will be solved by practical and interesting exhibits. Most of these displays will be put on by women who have studied home problems from every angle, and know the latest ways of doing things well.

Time-saving devices will be shown, too. There will be delicious breads and cakes, pies and cookies, canned foods, and other home-made products, all on tempting display. Visitors will exchange recipes and talk over home work problems at baking and canning booths.

The home needlework cover falls to interest women visitors to the Central States Exposition. Such will be the case to even greater degree this year. Fancy work, laces and practical sewing and dressmaking, will captivate every one.

CHALCRAFT TO COAST

Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Chalcraft expect to leave the latter part of this week for a trip to the coast. They will make the trip by auto and expect to follow the lake route, and will also make a short trip into Canada on the way. They expect to camp most of the time. Mr. Chalcraft is combining business with this pleasure trip.

STORM DOES MUCH DAMAGE TO FARMERS

Many Trees Are Uprooted and Barns Struck by the Lightning

HICKORY HARD HIT.

Antioch was visited by two terrific storms Saturday and early Sunday morning. The first storm, which was a severe electrical storm and cloudburst, flooded the streets and severed the service wire, throwing Antioch into darkness from 7:30 on.

It was a severe blow to the merchants as the lake region was entertaining one of the biggest crowds in its history. All day long a steady stream of cars was passing through the business section, and it looked very good for one big night, but the storm put a blanket on it.

The second storm hit the village about 1:00 o'clock Sunday morning, and old inhabitants say it was the worst they had seen outside of the cyclone of a few years back.

It did untold damage to the village and countryside. Corn crops everywhere are flat and there is doubt of saving very much of it as in many places it is broken off.

Over Hickory way the trees were uprooted, especially fruit trees, and those that were not blown down are now practically bare of fruit. Alfred Pederson's windmill was blown down and barn doors blown off. The Emmett King barn was struck by lightning but the rain saved it from fire. Curtis Wells lost a heifer that was struck by lightning while in the pasture. Bert Edwards' large sheep barn was blown over, and Ralph Millers' shed was struck.

Trees and limbs are strewn all over many of the farm yards. The storm caused many of the farm folks to make for the cellar.

At Lake Villa, George McCredies' barn was struck and burnt down. A large tree in front of the W. G. Hucker home was blown down, its branches covering the whole yard. Fruit trees were stripped of their fruit and many minor accidents were reported.

Trevor and other towns to the north were heavily hit. Trees in these downward path carrying electric wires and throwing the entire section into darkness and destroying telephone service. Barns were burnt down at Paddock's Lake, Twin Lakes and Silver Lake.

There is no judging the estimate of loss to the farmers but it will be a big blow to an otherwise bumper crop that was in sight.

Saturday night's severe electrical and wind storm prevented the appearance of the Paulist Cholothers and the holding of the carnival for the benefit of the Holy Name church of Wilmet at Barry club, Twin Lakes. However, the affair was held Sunday and close to two thousand people were present in the afternoon to hear the Cholothers' program of secular and sacred songs.

A TIP FROM THE OIL MEN

There are hundreds of oil fields in the United States. It is said that the combined output of these fields has resulted in an overproduction. Many companies have shut down actual drilling. Few new fields are being opened. The oil men are wise; they know that an overproduction means a low price and a loss of money. That's what the dairymen are learning. When they produce just enough to supply the fluid market and turn the surplus into manufactured products they are stabilizing the whole dairy industry.

THE WISCONSIN STATE FAIR
"Educates, Inspires and Entertains
Upon the Biggest Possible Scale."

SEE RAPID GROWTH OF DAIRY INDUSTRY

Record-Breaking Exhibit of Cattle at Aurora Fair is a Good Omen.

The dairy cattle show at the Central States Exposition, Aurora, August 17 to 25, will be one of the biggest features of the entire fair. Secretary Clifford Trimble announces.

Superintendent C. S. Rhode is arranging for a record-breaking exhibit; so many breeders have expressed their intention of exhibiting at the fair that every available stall is certain to be occupied. It may be necessary to arrange for additional accommodations.

The fair has set aside $12,000 for premiums. Silk premium ribbons will also be awarded. Prizes are offered for animals of all ages and both sexes, insuring a large show.

The rapid development of the dairy industry in this locality is given by Superintendent C. S. Rhode as a leading reason for the increased interest in the show. The acknowledged value of pure bred bulls in the building up of farm herds is no longer questioned by local farmers and breeders.

Greater interest in the show is also due to the big campaign for better farm stock which is being conducted as a part of the 1923 educational program of the fair, say officials.

The dairy show will be a place where farmers can meet breeders and buy foundation stock with which to build up their dairy herds.

Many farmers who have decided to start in the pure bred business on a small scale are coming to the fair to study and compare the different breeds shown. There will be exhibits of Holsteins, Jerseys, Guernseys, Ayrshires and Brown Swisses. Dairy cattle will be judged August 21 and 22.

Entries for the dairy cattle show will be accepted until July 30.

Methodist Episcopal Church News

The vacation school of religion was a splendid success and has revealed the value of this type of work to many who had not understood it before. The demonstration program given last Friday evening showed that the methods are such as to get the children interested and keep them coming when once they start. At the close of the program the audience expressed an earnest desire that Antioch may have a community school of religion to run through the entire year, providing two or three hours each week of week day instruction. Plans are on foot to ascertain whether it is possible. It is found feasible, announcements will be made later.

Last Sunday morning's theme was "The Purpose of Prayer." Its general drift was:

The purpose of God in creating man

In the first place was that He might have in the universe a very large number of God-like personalities. A joyous thought; a delightful anticipation it was in the heart of God: "Let us make man in our own image." He breathed into man's nostrils the breath of life; that is, He imparted of His own very essence and made man a conscious personal spirit, like Himself, and also in the likeness of His own holiness.

Though man fell, and has wandered the wide fields of sin and made gastly havoc and tragic wreck, still the unswerving purpose of God holds steady in the path of the great task He has set Himself, which is God-like personalities in the sons of men.

A multitude of minor means and ways can help to the making of ourselves like God, but there is just one line of activity which is the basic and essential thing to this end: It is prayer. After all else is thought of, we find that prayer is really the only means by which we can grow like God. But by prayer, we can actually become constantly, day after day, more and more like Him until the fullness of His glorious image is restored to us and we are all radiant with the effulgent glory of God. What a heritage! For us now! Let's have it!

"THE TIGERS CLAW" AT THE MAJESTIC (By Oliver Johnson)

The story opens with Jack Holt in charge of a construction gang in East India. He has fallen in love with a native girl, among her natural surroundings and marries her, thinking that he will never again see the girl sweetheart who had sent him away from the states several years before. However, his former sweetheart comes to India with her father and he meets her. His wife, fearing to lose him enlists the aid of her uncle, who is a native magician, supposed to be communing with the spirits. Together they drug Jack Holt and in this condition the story proceeds to its close until his girl sweetheart finally awakens the white man's blood, helping him conquer his habits.

See the tiger hunts, East Indian magic, native dances, the leap of the enraged tiger onto Jack Holt's back, the blowing up of the gigantic dam, bringing the breath of death to the valley—something you will never forget.—Next Saturday and Sunday, August 18-19.

GOVERNOR'S CUP FOR BABY CHAMP

Shetland Pony Also Prize at Central States Fair Conference.

A Shetland pony, the governor's cup, a solid silver trophy of handsome design, and two score of bank accounts are announced by Secretary Clifford R. Trimble as awards for the highest scoring children in the "Better Babies" conference to be conducted in connection with the second annual Central States Exposition, to be held in Aurora August 17 to 25.

Governor Small will present the cup to the mother of the nearest perfect child between the ages of one and five years and at the same time will hand the child a bank certificate representing an initial deposit in a local bank in the name of the child. The pony will be presented to the highest scoring boy or girl between the ages of three and five years. There will be numerous other awards in the nature of savings accounts for the highest scoring boys and girls ranging in age from six months to five years. Twins and triplets up to five years of age, and large families, children six months to fourteen years, will be awarded special prizes.

Dr. Sinclair Drake, former director of the Illinois department of health, and Mrs. Drake will have personal charge of the conference.

The baby conference pavilion in the Woman's building is being materially altered in both arrangement and equipment with a view to affording visiting mothers and children the safest and most comfortable accommodations. The examining staff will be composed of leading medical experts.

In no respect will this baby conference resemble the old-fashioned baby show in which the children were judged chiefly on beauty of face, fine frills and feathers. It will be a careful investigation of each child by medical experts with a view to determining the exact physical and mental status of the child.

Each child will be given a mental test, a physical examination, an eye, ear, nose and throat examination, and will be weighed and measured. The mental test will be applied by psychologists assigned by the Juvenile Psychopathic Institute, Chicago. The physical examinations will be made by leading doctors, dentists will conduct the oral tests and specialists detailed from the Illinois department of public welfare will conduct examinations of the eye, ear, nose and throat.

Children between the ages of six months and five years are eligible for entry in this conference. There are no restrictions as to residence and no entry fee is required. Mothers should send their entries to Clifford R. Trimble, secretary, Central States Fair and Exposition, Aurora, Ill.

SHOOT OFF A TRAIN-LOAD OF FIREWORKS

"India," Gorgeous Pageant, Feature of Night Show at Fair.

The mammoth fireworks spectacle, "India," will headline the night program at the Central States Exposition, Aurora, August 17 to 25, Secretary Clifford R. Trimble announces.

So large is the show engaged by the fair this year that a special train will be needed to transport it to and from the fair. Hundreds of feet of scenery, depicting the historical background for the spectacle, must be put up in the staging of the program. It has taken a small army of workmen the bigger part of the summer to make this scenery.

A staff of fireworks experts will accompany the spectacle to put up the scenery, "set" the fireworks, make the many elaborate set pieces which are to be used as special features each night, and "fire" the show. Following each night show the scenery, which has been torn to pieces by the "setting off" of the fireworks, must be rebuilt in a day, rewired, and made completely ready for the next evening's show.

Some strikingly new effects in fireworks may be looked for at the coming spectacle, according to the manufacturers. Experiments continued since the war have produced more vivid and more unusual color effects than were thought possible five years ago. Red strychnine, ground aluminum, potassium, and magnesium, the basic ingredients, have been combined with new chemicals, in working out the formulas now in use.

Guards will be assigned the entire week to keep curious persons away from the big stores of powder and high explosives shipped in to put on the big spectacle. Every precaution is taken to prevent accidents in the handling of supplies from the time they leave the factory until they arrive on the fair grounds.

ACRES OF IMPLEMENTS AT THE AURORA FAIR

The biggest exhibit of farm implements and machinery ever gathered together at a fair in the West will be one of the features of the second annual Central States Fair and Exposition, August 17 to 25. The fair association has set aside 30 acres for this department and every inch of the ground will be covered. All of the leading manufacturers have arranged to give practical demonstrations.

ECONOMIC ENGINEERING

An engineer in California tackled a great canny pile of apricot, peach and plum stones. From this garbage he got 625 tons of sweet almond oil, nearly as much essential oil of almonds, over a million pounds of macaroni paste and 2,500 tons of the finest charcoal. This can be sold for three cents a pound. During the war the U. S. government spent $10,000,000 to get such charcoal at a minimum cost of 30 cents a pound.

Our future success as a nation depends upon using the resources we have now, however lowly. That is one of the underlying principles of co-operation. Cash is on the by-products, that's what every farmer co-operative organization in the United States is trying to do.

In a metropolitan dairy district the by-products are skim milk, cheese, butter, condensed milk, etc. The four zone plan worked out by the Committee of Nine to be used in the Chicago dairy district is a great piece of economical engineering. It is as great a piece of work as was the tacking of the canny pile of fruit stones. When there is a surplus of fluid milk beginning a market and no equipment for converting it into a salable product it becomes as useless as peach pits—more so. It doesn't even make good fertilizer.—The Milk Market Reporter.

GOLD IN THE MILK CANS

California is making more out of oil than she ever made out of gold. She is making still more millions out of prunes and grapes.

Grapes and prunes don't glitter. That is they didn't until about half of California's orchard-men had gone broke trying to make a living. Prunes and grapes weren't attractive to either the producer or consumer, not until co-operative marketing got into the running. You know what happened then.

Dairymen of the Chicago district have a gold mine buried in their dairy industry. Give co-operative marketing a few more years—the gold will begin to glitter in the milk can.—The Milk Market Reporter.

"BUYERS who force salesmen to cool their heels outside the offices increase the annual cost of distribution by more than $100,000,000," said Charles Henry MacIntosh in an address before the Executive Club of Chicago. Manufacturers and wholesalers realize with sorrow the amount of time wasted by salesmen waiting in anterooms. The long distance telephone can aid in saving much of this time.

Have your salesmen call their customers or prospects by long distance telephone and make definite appointments. A long distance call commands respect and an appointment so requested will seldom be refused.

THE LIGHT OF WESTERN STARS

A Romance

by Zane Grey

Illustrations by IRVIN MYERS

When they rounded the head of the mesa, bringing into view the ranch-house and the valley, Madeline saw dust or smoke hovering over a hut upon the outskirts of the Mexican quarters. As the sun had set and the light was fading, she could not distinguish which it was. Then Stewart set a fast pace for the house. In a few minutes the party was in the yard, ready and willing to dismount.

Stillwell appeared, ostensibly cheerful, too cheerful to deceive Madeline. She noted also that a number of armed cowboys were walking with their horses just below the house.

"Well, you-all had a nice little run," Stillwell said, speaking generally. "I reckon there wasn't much need of it. Pat Hawe thinks he's got some outlaws corralled on the ranch. Nothing at all to be fussed up about. Stewart's that particular he won't have you meddling with any rowdies."

Many and fervent were the expressions of relief from Madeline's feminine guests as they dismounted and went into the house. Madeline lingered behind to speak with Stillwell and Stewart.

"Now, Stillwell, out with it," she said, briefly.

"Well, Miss Majesty, there's goin' to be a fight somewhere, an' Stewart wanted to get you-all in before it come off. He says the valley's overrun by vaqueros an' guerrillas an' robbers, an' Lord knows what else."

He stamped off the porch, his huge spurs rattling, and started down the path toward the waiting men.

Stewart stood in his familiar attentive position, erect, alert, with a hand on pommel and hilt.

"Stewart, you are exceedingly thoughtful of my interests," she said, wanting to thank him, and not readily finding words. "I would not know what to do without you. Is there danger?"

"I'm not sure. But I want to be on the safe side."

She hesitated. It was no longer easy for her to talk to him, and she did not know why.

"May I know the special orders you gave Nels and Nick and Monty?" she asked.

"Of course I'll tell you if you insist. My orders were that at least one of them must be on guard near you day and night—never to be out of hearing of your voice."

"I thought as much. Stewart, you still think Don Carlos tried to make off with me—many try it again?"

"I don't think. I know."

"And besides all your other duties you have shared the watch with these three cowboys?"

"Yes."

"It has been going on without my knowledge? How long is it to continue?"

"That's hard to say. Till the revolution is over, anyhow."

She missed a moment, looking away to the west, where the great void was filling with red haze. She believed implicitly in him, and the menace hovering near her felt like a shadow upon her present happiness.

"What must I do?" she asked.

"I think you ought to send your friends back East—and go with them, until this guerrilla war is over."

"Why, Stewart, they would be broken-hearted, and so would I."

He had no reply for that.

"If I do not take your advice it will be the first time since I have come to look to you for so much," she went on. "Cannot you suggest something else? My friends are having such a splendid visit. Helen is getting well. Oh, I should be sorry to see them go before they were to."

"We might take them up into the mountains and camp out for a while," he said, presently. "I know a wild place up among the crags. It's a hard climb, but worth the work. I never saw a more beautiful spot. Fine water, and it will be cool. Pretty soon I'll be ten hot here for your party to go out-of-doors."

"You mean to hide me away among the crags and clouds?" replied Madeline, with a laugh.

"Well, it's amount to that. Your friends need not know. Perhaps in a few weeks this spell of trouble on the border will be over till fall."

"You say it's a hard climb up to this place?"

"It surely is. Your friends will get the real thing if they make that trip."

"That suits me. Helen especially wants something to happen. Very well, I am decided. Stewart, of course you will take charge? I don't believe I—Stewart, isn't there something more you could tell me—why you think, why you know my own personal liberty is in peril?"

"Yes. But do not ask me what it is. If I hadn't been a rebel soldier I would never have known."

"If you had not been a rebel soldier, where would Madeline Hammond be now?" she asked, earnestly.

He made no reply.

"Stewart," she continued, with warm impulse, "you once mentioned a debt you owed me—" And seeing his dark face pale, she wavered, then went on. "It is paid."

"No, no. That never can be paid," Madeline held out her hand.

"It is paid, I tell you," she repeated. Suddenly he drew back from the outstretched white hand that seemed to fascinate him.

"To kill a man to touch your hand. But I won't touch it on the terms you offer."

His unexpected passion disconcerted her.

"Stewart, no man ever before refused to shake hands with me, for any reason. It—it is scarcely flattering," she said, with a little laugh. "Why won't you? Because you think I offer it as mistress to servant—rancher to cowboy?"

"No."

"Then why? The debt you owed me is paid. I cancel it. So why not shake hands upon it, as men do?"

"I won't. That's all."

"I fear you are ungracious, whatever your reason," she replied. "Still, I may offer it again some day. Good-night."

He said good-night and turned. Madeline wonderingly watched him go down the path with his hand on the black horse's neck.

She went in to rest a little before dressing for dinner and, being fatigued from the day's riding and excitement, she fell asleep. When she awoke it was twilight. She wondered why her Mexican maid had not come to her, and she rang the bell. The maid did not put in an appearance, nor was there any answer to the ring. The house seemed unusually quiet. It was a brooding silence, which presently broke to the sound of footsteps on the porch. Madeline recognized Stillwell's tread, though it appeared to be light for him. Then she heard him call softly in at the open door of her office. The suggestion of caution in his voice suited the strangeness of the walk. With a hushing sense of trouble she hurried through the rooms. He was standing outside her office door.

"Stillwell," she exclaimed.

"Please come out on the porch."

She complied and, once out, was enabled to see him. His grave face, paler than she had ever beheld it, caused her to stretch an appealing hand toward him. Stillwell intercepted it and held it in his own.

"Miss Majesty, I'm amazin' sorry to tell worrisome news. But it can't be avoided. The fact is we're in a bad fix. If your guests ain't scared out of their skins I'll be owlin' to your nerve an' how you carry out Stewart's orders."

"You can rely upon me," replied Madeline, firmly, though she trembled.

"Well, what were up against is this:

"In the House?" Echoed Madeline, aghast.

that gang of bandits Pat Hawe was chasin'—they're hidin' in the house!"

"In the house?" echoed Madeline, aghast.

"Miss Majesty, it's the amazin' truth, an' I shamed indeed an' I to admit it. Stewart—why, he's wild with rage to think it could hev happened. You see, it couldn't hev happened if I hadn't sloped the boys off to the gold-lot flats, an' if Stewart hadn't rid out on the mesa after us. It's my fault. Now, listen. When Stewart left you an hour or so ago he follered me direct to where me an' the boys was tryin' to keep Pat Hawe from tearin' the ranch to pieces. At that we was helpin' Pat an' we could to find them bandits. But when Stewart got there he made a difference. Pat was nasty before, but when Stewart made him wuss, I reckon George to Pat is the same as red to a Greaser Bull. Anyway, when the sheriff set fire to an old adobe-hut Stewart called him an' called him hard. Pat Hawe hed six fellows with him, an' from all appearances bandit-huntin' was some festa. There was a raw, an' it looked bad for a little. But Gens was cool, an' he controlled the boys. Then Pat an' his tough de-pootles went on huntin'. That huntin', Miss Majesty, petered out into what was only a farce. Pat Hawe wasn't lookin' hard for any bandits; he wasn't duld set huntin' anythin', unless it was trouble for Stewart. Finally, when Pat's men made for our storehouse, where we keep ammunition, grub, liquors, an' sich, then Gens called a halt. An' he ordered Pat Hawe off the ranch. It was hyar Hawe an' Stewart locked horns. An' hyar, the truth come out. There was a gang of bandits hid somewhere, an' at first Pat powerful active

in'. But suddenlike he'd fetched a pe cooler change of heart. He had been some flustered with Stewart's eyes a- pryin' into his moves, an' then, maybe to hide somethin', maybe jest nat'ral, he got mad. He holered law. He pulled down off the shelf his old stock grudge an' Stewart, accusin' him over again of that Greaser murder last fall. Stewart made him look like a fool— showed him up as hein' scared of the bandits or hevin' some reason fer sloppin' off the trail. Anyway, the row started all right, an' it might hev amounted to a fight. In the thick of it, when Stewart was drivin' Pat an' his crowd off the place, one of them de-pootles lost his head an' went fer his gun. Nels throwed his gun an' crippled the feller's arm. Monty jumped then an' throwed two forty-fives, an' fer a second or so it looked ticklish. But the bandit-hunters crawled, an' then lit out."

Stillwell paused in the rapid delivery of his narrative; he still retained Madeline's hand, as if by that he might comfort her.

"After Pat left we put our hands together," began the old cattleman, with a long respiration. "We rounded up a lad who had seen a dozen or so fellows— he wouldn't say they was Greasers—breakin' through the shrubbery to the back of the house. That was whilts Stewart was ridin' out to the mesa. Then this lad seen your servants all runnin' down the hill toward the village. Now, heah's the way Gens figgers. There sure was some deviltry down along the railroad, an' Pat Hawa trailed handits up to the ranch. He hunts hard no then all to onct he quits. Stewart says Pat Hawe wasn't scared, but he discovered signs of somethin', or got wind in some strange way that there was in the gang of bandits some fellows he didn't want to ketch. Sahe? Then Gens, quicker'n a flash, springs his plan on me. He'd go down to Padre Marcos an' hev him help to find out all possible from your Mexican servants. I was to hurry up hyar an' tell you—give you orders, Miss Majesty. Ain't that amazin' strange? Well, you're to assemble all your guests in the kitchen. Make a grand bluff an' pretend, as your help has left, that it'll be great fun fer your guests to cook dinner. The kitchen is the safest room in the house. While you're joshin' your party along, tashin' a kind of picnic out of it, I'll place cowboys in the long corridor, an' also outside in the corner where the kitchen joins on to the main house. It's pretty sure the bandits think no one's wise to where they're hid. Stewart says they're in that room where the alfalfa is, an' they'll slope in the night. Of course, with me an' the boys watchin', you-all will be safe to go to bed. An' we're to rouse your guests early before daylight, to hit the trail up into the mountains. Tell them to pack outfits before goin' to bed. Say as your servants hev sloped, you might as well go campin' with the cowboys. That's all. If we hev any luck your friends'll never know they've been sittin' on a powder-mine. Now, Miss Majesty, I've used up a lot of time explainin'. You'll sure keep your nerve?"

"Yes," Madeline replied, and was surprised at herself.

"Better tell Florence. She'll be a power of comfort to you. I'm goin' now to fetch up the boys."

Instead of returning to her room Madeline went through the office into the long corridor. It was almost as dark as night. She fancied she saw a slow-gliding figure darker than the surrounding gloom; and she entered upon the fulfillment of her part of the plan in something like trepidation. Her footsteps were noiseless. Finding the door to the kitchen, and going in, she struck lights. Upon passing out again she made certain she discerned a dark shape, now motionless, crouching along the wall. But she mistrusted her vivid imagination. It took all her boldness to enable her unconcernedly and naturally to strike the corridor light. Then she went on through her own rooms and thence into the patio.

Her guests laughingly and gladly entered into the spirit of the occasion. They trooped merrily into the kitchen. Madeline, delaying at the door, took a sharp but unobtrusive glance down the great, burnlike hall. She saw nothing but blank dark space. Suddenly from one side, not a rod distant, protruded a pale, gleaming face breasting the even blackness. Instantly it flashed back out of sight. Yet that time was long enough for Madeline to see a pair of glittering eyes, and to recognize them as Don Carlos.

Without betraying either hurry or alarm, she closed the door. It had a heavy bolt which she slowly, noiselessly shot. Then the cold amaze that had all but stunned her into inaction throbbled into wrath. How dared that Mexican steal into her home! What did he mean? Was he one of the bandits supposed to be hidden in her house? She was thinking herself into greater anger and excitement, and probably would have betrayed herself had not Florence, who had evidently seen her bolt the door and now read her thoughts, come toward her with a bright, luteal, questioning look. Madeline caught herself in time.

Thereupon she gave each of her guests a duty to perform. Leading Florence into the pantry, she unburdened herself of the secret in one brief whisper. Florence's reply was to point out of the little open window, passing which was a file of stealthily moving cowboys. Then Madeline lost both anger and fear, retaining only the glow of excitement.

The miscellaneous collection of dishes so confusingly contrived made up a dinner which they all heartily enjoyed. Madeline enjoyed it herself, even with the feeling of a sword hanging suspended over her.

The hour was late when she rose from the table and told her guests to go to their rooms, den their riding-clothes, pack what they needed for the long and adventurous camping trip that she hoped would be the climax of their western experience, and to snatch a little sleep before the cowboys roused them for the early start.

Madeline went immediately to her room, and was getting out her camping apparel when a knock interrupted her. "Who's there?" she questioned.

"Stewart," came the reply.

She opened the door. He stood on the threshold.

"May I speak to you?" he asked.

"Certainly." She hesitated a moment, then asked him in and closed the door. "Is—Is everything all right?"

"No. These bandits stick to cover pretty close. They must have found out we're on the watch. But I'm sure we'll get you and your friends away before anything starts."

"Do you have any idea who is hiding in the house?"

"I was worried some at first. Pat Hawe neter queer. I imagined he'd discovered he was trailing bandits who might turn out to be smuggling guerrilla cronies. But talking with your servants, finding a bunch of horses hidden down in the mesquite behind the pond—several things have changed my mind. My idea is that a cowardly handful of riffraff, outcasts from the border have hidden in your house, more by accident than design. We'll let them go—get rid of them without even a shot. If I didn't think so—well, I'd be considerably worried. It would make a different state of affairs."

"Stewart, you are wrong. I saw one of these bandits. I distinctly recognized him."

One long step brought him close to her.

"Who was he?" demanded Stewart.

"Don Carlos."

He muttered low and deep, then said, "Are you sure?"

"Absolutely. I saw his figure twice in the hall, then his face in the light. I could never mistake his eyes."

Madeline was tremblingly conscious that Stewart underwent a transformation. She saw as well as felt the leaping passion that changed him.

"Call your friends—get them in here!" he ordered, tersely, and wheeled toward the door.

"Stewart, wait!" she said.

He turned. His white face, his burning eyes, his presence now charged with defiance, fearful meaning, influenced her strangely, weakened her.

"What will you do?" she asked.

"That needn't concern you. Get your party in here. Bar the windows and lock the doors. You'll be safe."

"Stewart! Tell me what you intend to do."

"I won't tell you," he replied, and turned away again.

"But I will know," she said. With a hand on his arm she detained him. She saw how he halted—felt the shock in him as she touched him. "Oh, I do know. You mean to fight!"
